

Now Hiring: Science Educator

The Mammoth Site is now hiring a qualified educator to direct their public education programs. This fun and exciting job will allow you to be the teacher you have always wanted to be. Please email Mammoth Site Business Manager Preston Gabel at presstong@mammothsite.org for a full job description.

Duties include:

- Develop, implement and review current public education and curricular activities.
- Develop, implement and review as well as up-date all education curricular activity booklets for teachers, traveling kits, hands-on and classroom classes.
- Teaching class to field trips of grades K-12.
- Records and manages Junior Paleo and Advanced Paleo classes.
- Run the intern program.
- Helps with grant writing as it relates to educational programing.

Minimum Qualifications:

- Possess the ability and desire to effectively communicate and work as a team with staff, Board of Directors and various Board Committees.
- Science background and a knowledge of interpretive skills.
- Supervisory Skills.
- Master's Degree in Education, Paleontology, Archeology, or similar field.
- Proficient in Microsoft Office
- At least one publication, peer review, science or science educational topic.

Desired Qualifications:

- 3 years of teaching in a classroom environment.
- Teaching Experience in grade levels K-8.
- Extensive Science Background and interpretative skills.
- Public Speaking Experience
- Doctorate (PhD/EDD) in Education, Paleontology, Archeology or related science program of study.
- Current teaching certificate or the desire to obtain one in South Dakota.